

Radio Streaming

Aaron Salvo

The app consists of several buttons at the top each being a different genre of music linked to an internet stream. Upon clicking any button the app 'should' display a loading icon while it connects to the requested stream. Currently on my device, the device lags after pressing the button and does not display the icon during the load. Upon load an image will be displayed depicting the currently selected genre. A play button will appear below the image that will allow the user to play or pause the stream. Below that is a sound slider and mute button. When a stream is selected a visualizer will appear at the bottom of the screen attached to the current stream. Some radio stations may take longer to load than others.